Ten-two F.

Workmen are tearing down the old building on the corner opposite, and the erection of the new home of Rich's shoes will soon be commenced. It will, indeed, be a model shoe store-and the only one in the city built especially for shoe selling-especially adapted to the needs of a shoe business. In making the plans your conveniences were carefully consid ered, and we are certain that the arrangement of the store will meet your approval.

The increased shoe space will give us an opportunity to show even a greater stock of footwear than ever. No greater in variety, though, because we have always shown ALL the styles approved by the particular people of the larger cities—the productions of the best shoemakers of America

We have made great preparations this season for the commencements now taking place. We have gathered a stock of footwear especially adapted for wear on these occasions and we can meet your wants with a variety in satin, suede, kid and patent leather footwear unsurpassed.

Equal preparations have been made for outings-the greatest variety of shoes best suited to wear at the mountains and seashore—are to be seen here-every "correct"

Those who are going abroad will find here just the proper footwear for traveling. Our advice to you is to take enough with you because foreign-made shoes are far inferior to the American made -in not only the appearance -but in comfort and wear.

GRIDIRON CRUISE.

Brave Mariners to Sail Up the Raging and Dangerous Canal.

"Gridiron Club, Ahoy!" is the stirring hall which adorns a poster bearing a legend of interest to the members of that famous organization The nautical appearance of the poster is further heightened by a cut of a full-rigged ship with every sail set and stun sails out, to'gallan' sails drawing and everything shipshape. A big gridiron at the mainmast head serves as a house flag to identify the noble craft. The legend sayeth that a gallant flagship, "The Flying Dutchman," will cast loose from Aqueduct bridge Saturday, June 19. at 9 a.m., under exclusive charter for the Great Falls of the Potomac, "via the be-wilderingly picturesque and generally se-rene canal Timid voyagers are assured rene canal Timid voyagers are assured that a skillful navigator has been secured. A generous stock of life 'preservers' will be found under each berth, and for addi-tional precaution the ship will be fortified by copious internal safety devices, to which the after cabin will be devoted."

It is stated that the entire municipality of Great Falls will turn out to welcome the club on reaching there soon after noon, club on reaching there soon after noon, "and the wonders of nature (and ari) will then be 'opened' to inspection" and the "roar of the falls will be heard absolutely without expense."
